

CHINESE SUPERSTITIONS

Chinese culture began thousands years ago and it causes that Chinese people have a lot of traditions and superstitions. They know that believing in superstitions keep existing their thousand-years-old culture and it allows to grow their identity. In Chinese culture superstitions are included in daily life and in all important events like New Year, weddings, pregnancy...Etc.

SUPERSTITIONS IN CELEBRATIONS

WEDDINGS

There are colors that are allowed in a Chinese wedding and colors that are forbidden in a chinese wedding.

Chinese people can wear red, yellow or white clothes because these colors are a sign of good luck, but they can't wear black, blue or grey clothes because it will attract bad luck for the future marriage.

The marital bed must be blessed with a child who has had to be born in the dragon year, passing him above it. This ritual provides good luck at the marriage and it provides that the couple could have a male child.

PREGNANCY

If a pregnant hit an animal the child will look like that animal.

You can't say any nice to a new born because you will attract bad esprits and ghosts.

If a child is born with more than one hair he will be malicious and disobedient

If a child is born with big ears he will have prosperity for all his life.